

Cleans internal diesel injector deposits (IDID), and indirect injection (IDI) and high speed direct injection (HSDI) nozzle-coking deposits. Restores lost engine power and prevents fuel injector sticking and failure. Improves engine ???

Increases power, performance, mileage and saves fuel by not only cleaning the entire emissions & exhaust system, but the fuel system too. Regular use every 5,000 miles tunes-up the fuel, emissions and exhaust system keeping clean and prevents excessive exhaust regeneration and the CEL light from returning.

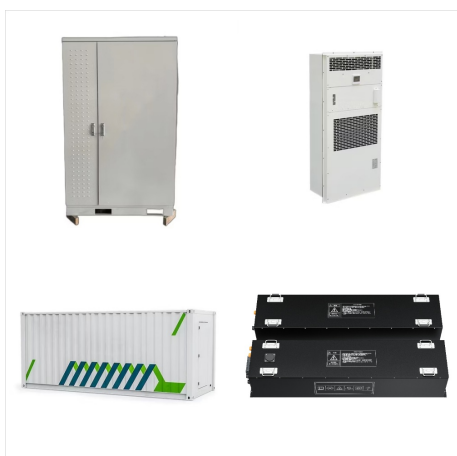

Ignore the section about the Wynns turbo cleaner and DPF cleaner in the first sentence, this was talking about someone elses car In my diesel I average around 600 or so miles between DPF regenerations due to the extremely relaxed driving style and idea route that I drive to and from work on.
