

Does Yemen support the Special Envoy?

ABDULLAH ALI FADHEL AL-SAAD (Yemen) reiterated his country's support for the Special Envoy, as well as for regional and international efforts to relaunch the 2022 truce and the United Nations-facilitated peace process. However, for peace to be achieved, negotiating partners that believe in equal rights and reject violence are required.

Is a Yemeni truce being carried out in 2022?

Hans Grundberg, Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Yemen, said elements of the truce that became effective in April 2022 are being carried out as intense diplomatic efforts go on at various levels to end the conflict.

Should a Yemeni-Yemeni political process be resumed?

A resumption of a Yemeni-Yemeni political process is a central element and remains at the core of his mandate. A political process that addresses the concerns and aspirations of Yemen's people must be Yemeni-owned and include the voices of Yemeni stakeholders, including youth, civil society and women.

Why did the UN envoy call for peace in Yemen?

The UN envoy stressed the critical need for the parties, the region, and the international community to "capitalize on these moments in order to not miss the chance to take clear steps towards peace," otherwise the suffering of the Yemeni people will continue. He said ending the war is a choice that remains within reach of the warring sides.

Is peace possible in Yemen?

Peace is possible in Yemen, and continued support from the international community is essential to achieve it, the UN Special Envoy for the country told the Security Council on Wednesday.

How can a solution to Yemen's crisis be sustainable?

For a solution to the crisis to be sustainable, it must be inclusive, as well as Yemeni-led and Yemeni-owned. Yemeni-owned must also mean Yemeni-women-owned. The structural inequalities holding back Yemen's women are also holding back the cause of peace. She urged all parties on the ground to engage in an immediate nationwide ceasefire.
