Very lax. I would prepare for some basic behavioral questions and know what's on your resume. The interview at some point started to deviate from being an interview to what seemed more like a conversation. They would ask a question, I would answer, and then they would either ask further or relate my experience to theirs at GE.

In addition to the general management questions, you should also prepare for some questions that are specific to the renewable energy sector. These may include inquiries about the benefits and
