Setting up your own solo Lethal Company game is fairly easy. Once you launch the game, open the main menu, select the option for a LAN game instead of the online mode, and host your own session. As a solo player, you're fairly limited to how much scrap you can carry, making it much harder to meet your quota without that teamwork.

Before we start getting into the nitty-gritty, I thought I'd describe what a solo run is typically going to look like, assuming your goal is to get as high quota as possible. I would also like to throw in a shoutout to Thalonius whose long-form solo Lethal Company videos have contributed so much to the knowledge base I needed to write this

Here is every Lethal Company monster and its location: The Baboon Hawk is a terrifying-looking monster, with three beak-like horns on the front of its face with which it spears its prey. Large, red eyes are set above these horns, and, as suggested by its name, the rest of its body can be best described as a primate with wings.

You can play solo, if you like the whole aspect of the game; you can enjoy it solo. I mean, I do enjoy it solo, because it reminds me of exploring caves alone. It's pretty creepy, but if the enemies that require 2+ players to get rid of wouldn't spawn during solo runs it would be nice. I suggest doing it coop then trying out solo to start.

For me, Lethal Company Enhancer is a great one for saving loot in case you die. Lategame Upgrades is amazing for having something to spend on. Now, arguably the most important: Not So Brutal Company. Not exclusively for solo, but some QoL mods from the top of my head: Quick switch, (Both the better scroll wheel, and the number key mods).

Lethal Company is a co-op horror game where you work with another 3 players to gather loot for the Company on different moons. The game focuses on a four-player gameplay where you get four times the loot whenever you play in a team with a total headcount of 4.

I think a huge part of lategame solo play is understanding what's complete garbage to take back and managing your stamina & weight for run speed. Biggest first lesson was giving the middle finger to tattered metal sheets. Worthless and heavy, it ends up costing you a lot of time. You absolutely 100% have to run later moons past a certain point.

Coil heads typically end your day on a solo run, so I'd leave the facility when you find one, a stun grenade stuns them for around 15 seconds which can be nice in a pinch, but otherwise you can get them in a corner to

Been playing more solo to improve my individual abilities but I find after the quota jumping from 700 to 1200 gets tricky to impossible. I've been grinding mostly March since it has one of the better escape options for a moon but I find it's more likely for mobs to spawn earlier which makes third trips harder. Usually I can get 1 trip worth by the main entrance then 1 trip ???
