

Best Answer. The three types of energy that come out of a hair dryer are electrical energy (from the power source), thermal energy (produced by the heating element to warm the air), and kinetic

Three types of energy storage systems in hybrid electric vehicles (HEVs) are: Battery packs - used to store electrical energy to power the electric motor and assist the internal combustion engine.

The three types of fibers in areolar connective tissue are collagen fibers, elastic fibers, and reticular fibers. These fibers provide support, elasticity, and strength to the tissue. Collagen