With the Industrial Revolution came the staggering rise of coal. By the turn of the 20th century, around half of the world's energy came from coal; and half still came from biomass. Throughout the 1900s, the world adopted a broader range of sources. First oil, gas, then hydropower. It wasn't until the 1960s that nuclear energy was added to

Oil-based fuels power millions of automobiles, aircraft and ships around the world and are integral to modern life. But burning oil is also one of the leading sources of CO2 emissions. Efforts are underway to decarbonise sectors like transport that rely heavily on oil, but this is challenging in areas such as aviation where alternatives (e.g. electric power) still cannot match the energy
