

Is solar a solution for Puerto Rico's energy future?

Earthjustice and its partners pushed the Puerto Rico Energy Bureau, which regulates energy in Puerto Rico, to reject reliance on a liquefied natural gas terminal and the construction of new gas plants, and instead embrace rooftop solar and battery storage as the true solution for Puerto Rico's energy future.

How will Puerto Rico benefit from a solar PV project?

Annually, the solar PV installations will produce approximately 460,000 MWh of energy, enough to power approximately 43,000 homes, and enhance Puerto Rico's grid reliability and energy security. The co-location of the new solar and battery resources will help maximize the project's energy production and improve grid stability.

Will New Fortress Energy build a liquefied natural gas terminal in Puerto Rico?

In 2019, Earthjustice represented numerous community organizations along Puerto Rico's San Juan Harbor who were not notified or consulted about New Fortress Energy's plans to build an enormous liquefied natural gas (LNG) import terminal less than a quarter mile away until after construction had begun.

What does Earthjustice's lawsuit mean for Puerto Rico?

Earthjustice's lawsuit demands that the Puerto Rico Energy Bureau and the Department of Economic Development and Commerce find alternative locations for renewable energy generation, such as already-contaminated sites, or prioritize the buildout of rooftop solar and battery storage.

Will the EPA approve Puerto Rico's proposed energy plan?

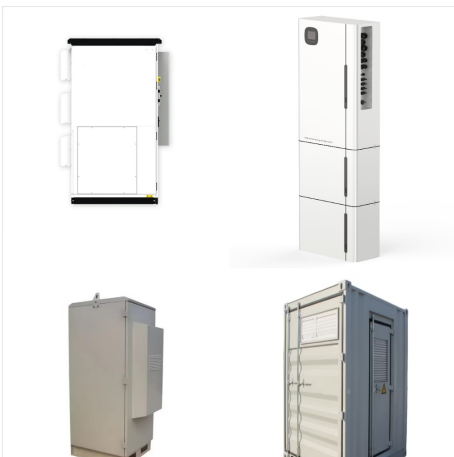

(Mabette Colón) Earthjustice and local groups are urging the EPA to approve components of Puerto Rico's proposed energy plan that direct the shutdown of specific fossil fuel power plants in San Juan, Palo Seco, and Aguirre in order to reduce sulfur dioxide (SO₂) pollution.

What is Earthjustice doing in Puerto Rico?

Earthjustice is working on behalf of environmental, labor, and civil society groups in Puerto Rico to accelerate the transition away from dirty fossil fuels in favor of a distributed renewable energy system that ensures access to clean energy for all Puerto Ricans.
