Homan Manufacturing Company Butter Dish This little fellow is dented, has plate loss and the holder for he butter knife is pinched. I use it to hold pocket change. Old silver always wants to serve, it was born to serve and if you are creative you can find it a job. I have a chalice in the aesthetic style marked Homan Silver plate Co

(From 21-0554-nickel1.pdf Nickel Silver, German Silver and related alloys) The Royal Manufacturing Company may simply have been an idealistic trading name for a company involved in EPNS and un-plated Nickel Silver manufacture. Cheers.

I'm trying to find someone who knows what Brazil Silver is. A friend has what appears to be quite old cutlery with the following stamped on the back, "Royal Manufacturing Co. Solid Brazil Silver" with a crown on top. I won't buy it (for melt down) without confirmation that it is true silver. It in fact looks like nickle or German Silver. I hope someone can shed some light on ???
