Now a French overseas department (d?partement d"outre-mer), Guyane [pronounced Gwiynn], or French Guiana, received around 70,000 convicts during the period between the opening and closing of the penal colony, 1852-1953. This was about the same number of convicts sent to New South Wales or to the Andaman Islands.

French Guiana really stands out among France's overseas territories, and there are several reasons for this. First off, there's the Kourou Space Centre. This isn't just any facility; it's a major strategic asset for France, perfectly placed near the equator for space launches. This boosts France's role in space exploration and also strengthens
