

Who is solo insurance?

All employees are licensed agents at Solo Insurance Services, Inc./Solo Insurance®; and are independent of any specific insurance company. As independent agents, we represent many different companies. This allows us to focus on finding your our best rate for the insurance coverage you want.

How can a sole proprietor get business insurance?

Sole proprietors can get business insurance online or over the phone, either right from an insurance company or through an insurance marketplace or third-party broker. Get multiple quotes from different business insurance providers before making a decision. When comparing quotes, consider things such as:

Does Sola cover out-of-pocket expenses?

Minimize out-of-pocket expenses with Sola's coverage. Don't let insurance gaps leave you financially vulnerable after a disaster. Traditional policies may not provide the coverage needed for full financial protection after a crisis, leaving you to cover large deductibles and repairs out-of-pocket.

Do sole proprietors need insurance?

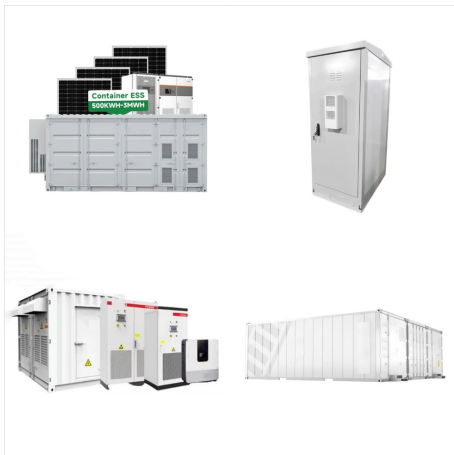

Sole proprietors should at least carry general liability insurance. This coverage protects you if someone files a lawsuit accusing you of damaging their property, injuring them or harming their reputation. As a sole proprietorship, a lawsuit could jeopardize your personal assets, not just your business finances.
