

Thin-film solar cells are commercially used in several technologies, including cadmium telluride (CdTe), copper indium gallium diselenide (CIGS), and amorphous thin-film silicon (a-Si, TF-Si). In rigid thin-film modules, the cell and the module are manufactured in the same production line.

Thin-film solar panels are manufactured using materials that are strong light absorbers, suitable for solar power generation. The most commonly used ones for thin-film solar technology are cadmium telluride (CdTe), copper indium gallium selenide (CIGS), amorphous silicon (a-Si), and gallium arsenide (GaAs).

Kaneka's thin-film silicon solar panel has a tandem structure that absorbs both the blue and red ends of the light spectrum allowing it to convert even more of the sun's light into energy. This latest thin-film silicon innovation can deliver high power generation, kWh/kWp, and is environmentally friendly.
