Changzhou Trina Solar Energy Co., Ltd., and Yingli Green Energy Holding Company, Ltd., are Chinese producers of crystalline silicon photovoltaic cells, modules, laminates, and panels (CSPV products). Those products were imported into the United States and were the "subject imports" in the proceeding at issue here.

The Company also plans to further increase its solar wafer manufacturing capacity to 3.0GW by 2024. The Inflation Reduction Act of 2022 created attractive incentives for companies to produce solar wafers and solar modules in the United States. Under the Act, solar wafer manufacturers will receive $12 per square meter of solar wafers produced.

SolarWorld filed an antidumping duty petition concerning certain photovoltaic products imported from China. After two remands, the Trade Court affirmed rulings by the Department of Commerce selecting Harmonized Tariff Schedule Heading 7604 for valuation of the aluminum frame inputs to the photovoltaic modules and offsetting the antidumping duty cash ???
